HOLLYWOOD — the annual 10-4 Day Parade of vintage police cars, a salute to public safety officers, was held Friday.

The parade began at the Los Angeles Fire Department Museum at 1327 N. Cahuenga Blvd. and arrived 15 minutes later at the Walk of Fame star of Broderick Crawford at 6901 Hollywood Blvd., where a ceremony will be held.

Among those invited to take part in the parade were Larry Wilcox and other cast members of the 1977-83 NBC series “CHiPS,” Paul Linke and Lou Wagner; Fred Dryer, star of the 1984-91 NBC police drama “Hunter”; City Councilman Tom LaBonge; KRTH-FM (101.1) disc jockey Shotgun Tom Kelly; and leaders of the California Highway Patrol, Los Angeles Police Department and Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department.

“This is a great opportunity to recognize our public safety officers and all they do to protect and serve,” LaBonge said.

The ceremony was held at Crawford’s star because of his starring role in the 1955-1959 syndicated television series “Highway Patrol.” Parade organizer Gary Goltz bills himself as the series’ No. 1 fan and owns a 1955 CHP Buick like the one used on “Highway Patrol.”

Goltz said “the parade is held Oct. 4 every year because 10-4 corresponds with the law enforcement radio code for message understood and was the classic sign-off used by Broderick Crawford”.
